In the west of Iceland, around the volcano Snaefellsjoekull, there is an extraordinary variety of minerals.

Colored mountain slopes adorn the landscape in the coastal region, alongside black basalt. Green stone formations merge smoothly into the moss-covered landscape; interspersed with red and yellow eruptions of nature.

In cooperation with landscape painter Peter Lang, we found three beautiful earth colors at midsummer time (11550 Snaefellsjoekull red, 11551 Heydalsvegur yellow, 11552 Brimisvellir green).
